Parents as Partners in Prevention

Dealing With Daughters

Presented by
Bridget Kramer,
LMSW, ACSW

The presentation focuses on improving the parent-daughter relationship through developing positive communication skills. Parents will learn skills in how to guide their daughters to problem solve, develop an understanding of how self-confidence and competence grow from within and through the communication patterns we have with our children. Practical skills in setting boundaries, reducing power-struggles, and reducing argumentative interactions will be taught. We will also discuss the harm in "parent as friend".

- Admission is free
- Open to parents, teachers, counselors, professionals that work with girls, all community members
